

Building a Culture of Health Across the United States

Clinical Scholars engages clinically active health care providers to collaborate in teams with fellow clinicians from a wide range of disciplines. The teams will take on complex problems in their communities, bridging clinical practice with transformative change centered on health equity. The map below indicates the states where the 30 Clinical Scholars fellows are currently conducting projects and the local communities in which the fellows live or work. The reverse page lists the teams, their sponsoring institutions and project titles.
